Thirty-third Sunday in Ordinary Time

NOVEMBER 13, 2016

Malachi 3:19-20a; 2 Thessalonians 3:7-12;
Luke 21:5-19

The people of the Old Covenant thought that God would render terrible judgment when the Messiah came. Evil would be destroyed in God's purifying fire. But the upright would rise to share eternal life. Our first reading expresses this expectation.

Many of the Thessalonians had quit their jobs and put on their glory robes in anticipation of the Second Coming of Jesus. Paul tells them to get back to work. The end is coming, but we don't know when. Meanwhile, we must work as well as watch and pray.

The Gospel is from Jesus' "Eschatological Sermon," the sermon on the "Last Things." Many Jews thought that the Temple priesthood had become so corrupt that God would destroy the Temple and build a new one. They thought that this would happen at the same time the Messiah came, at the end of the world as we know it.

Some of this expectation carried over into the primitive Church. Jesus says that the Temple will be destroyed, but the end of the world will not happen yet. He says that there will be many false prophets and false messiahs. There will be persecutions and all kinds of signs.

All of these signs took place before the end of the first century, but the end is not yet. But it is coming! Don't be disturbed; there are no new signs. It remains for us to watch and pray — to be ready when the Lord comes in his glory.

MISSION STATEMENT

We, the people of God in St. Pius X Church, Shreveport, LA., choose to serve God faithfully in our commitment to evangelize, to catechize, and to build community with the people of North Shreveport. Through the guidance of the Holy Spirit, we are empowered to build God's Kingdom by living and learning more deeply the Word of God and regularly participating in the Sacraments. The Church: Church is likened to sheepfold. Anyone can enter in it but through Christ alone. In the New Testament outside the gospels, the Church is frequently called God's building. Christ compared himself to the stone that the builders rejected. Yet it became the corner stone. St. Paul picked it up and explained that Jesus is the foundation on which the apostles continue to build. The Church is God's household where the primary training for the believers takes place. St. Paul formed his theology of the Church based on the concept that the Church is the body of Christ. For he writes to Corinthians, "For in one Spirit we were all baptized into one body" 1Cor 12,13. He says that we are baptized in Christ so that we may be molded into Christ's likeness through the Spirit. He also tells us that we receive the Eucharist so that by sharing the Lord's physical body, we may be raised to fellowship with Him and with one another. To Corinthians he writes, "Because the loaf of bread is one, we, though many are one body, for we all partake of the one loaf" 1Cor 10,17. All the faithful are related to Christ like that of the members of the human body. Just as the members of the human body have different functions, the faithful related to Christ's body also do different functions. Depending on the need of the ministry of the Church, Holy Spirit dispenses His gift in variety. The foremost of those gifts are the gifts taken by the grace of the apostles. They enjoy the gifts like miracles and prophecy. But all parts of the body are interconnected through the charity that the Spirit diffuses among the Church's members. Therefore, all the members share the joy and sorrows of other members, the body of Christ. As we are molded to the likeness of Christ, we share the suffering, death and resurrection with Him. Making our pilgrimage on earth, we follow His footsteps through trial and persecution until we come to the glory of the Church with Christ who is the head of the Church. Father Joe
